NEW TARIFF TO BE LEAPFROG AGAINST EUROPE.

Chairman Payne Announces That It Will Contain Maximum-Minimum Provision.
PUBLIC PLUNDERED—MILES
Dingley Law Breeder of Trusts, Declares Wisconsin Man to Committee.
STANDARD OIL SCORED
Steel Sold Abroad at Rates Much Lower Than In America.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Chairman Payne, of the Ways and Means Committee, announced this afternoon that the new tariff would embody the maximum and minimum principle.

In enforcing this provision in the new tariff law, the United States will have a means of retaliation against those European countries which have a "favored nation" clause in their tariff laws.

It sometimes happen that a European nation under the clause will permit the importation of certain commodities from one country at a lower tariff rate than the same goods from the United States.

With the maximum and minimum principle included in the new tariff law, the United States would then retaliate against such nations as thus discriminate and levy a higher tariff on the exports of the same commodity from the United States. When no discrimination exists against American exporters, the minimum tariff would be in force.

The idea is to afford the fullest measure of protection to American industries by a minimum tariff and yet include provision for a higher rate to be used when necessary to meet the discrimination by other nations.

Tariff a Trust Breeder.
When the Dingley bill was passed Congress went into the recess and the tariff was not revised. It was then declared against such nations as thus discriminate and levy a higher tariff on the exports of the same commodity from the United States.

Miles said that he appeared as a consumer, "one of the eighty million who have been injured by the tariff." He argued that for the farmers, and he also would have a word to say for the farmers, who had been a state instead of bond. Miles said that the money in the pockets of the farmers was being taken out of their pockets by the tariff and was being sent to Europe.

Plan for Subway Under Boylston Street to South Station Endorsed on All Sides.

The public utility committee of the Boston Merchants' Association will consider the question of an east and west subway for transportation purposes.

This committee has just been appointed and will at once take up the question of an east and west subway for transportation purposes.

The question of communication between the subway and the street cars is a very important one. It is a question that has been discussed for many years and it is one that must be solved if the city is to have a good transportation system.

The Boston Merchants' Association has a special plan to present. It is a plan that will connect the subway and the street cars in a way that will be convenient for the public. The plan is being discussed by the public utility committee.

The opening of the new $100,000,000 subway is the most important railway system for its size in the world and the consequent abandonment of some of the old lines will mean a great deal to the people of Boston.

A petition was addressed to the Boston Transit Commission, proposing plans for the badly needed connecting link. Two plans were suggested—one a tunnel from Tremont street and Boylston street, to the South Station; the other, a tunnel from Park street station, under Winter and Summer streets, to the South Station.

NORTH STATION

JOHN SHERARD

John Shepard, of the Shepard Norwell Co., "While I have not given the matter of relieving the traffic between the old and new subways my undivided attention, nevertheless I should say that a foot subway between Baylston street and Essex street would tend to allow the passengers coming from Cambridge and points beyond to reach the shopping district without having to get out at Park street in stormy weather and walk through, much to their discomfort. The scheme of introducing a moving platform in this subway would be a most desirable feature for transmuting the public."

WARD 23 A UNIT IN AIDING LEAGUE

Votes of all parties are called out in Ward 23 in a campaign for the independent League candidates for Aldermen and Councilmen from the district. The ward comprises Roxbury and West Boston. The League ticket there is one of the strongest in the city and is certain to attract a large labor vote.

Edward Elliott, vice-president of the Carpenter Union and a prominent member of the Wage Raising League, is the League candidate for Alderman. Ward D. Prescott, a business man, John A. Bristol, a young man with a head of red hair, and A. L. Levens, a well known labor man, are the Council candidates. Prescott was defeated in last year's municipal election.

The four candidates are confident of a provision in the new city charter which shall support public service corporations to pay for franchise.

Mayor Sends Out Early Call for Estimates to Make Up Budget.

Estimates will be the workhorse of the city government next year, according to the appropriation estimates which have been submitted to Mayor Hilditch by the department heads for the fiscal year, which will be submitted to the city council when it convenes in January.

In announcing this date for submitting the budget, the Mayor suggested a new order that the department heads should submit their estimates as early as possible. This is the first time that the Mayor has made such a suggestion.

From Tomorrow to May Wear O'Sullivan's

Soles and Heels Live Rubber

They are the demand of reason, and keep your feet and body immune against dampness, electricity, and all climatic changes.

Wear every shoe that is here applied to the O'Sullivan's Rubber Soles and Heels. We want the works to carry with them conviction, and then we want you to try the soles and heels of Live Rubber by having them attached by a real shoemaker, at any rate, to trust the work to a reputable shoe dealer.

Having your boots equipped with soles and heels of live rubber, you no longer pay tribute to the Rubber Trust. You wear what is better, healthier, less expensive, more durable, and better. Many people have to remove their rubbers when they enter an office, a theatre, a church, or a sickroom or even when calling at a friend's home. You do not have to do that if you wear soles and heels of Live Rubber; do not have to think about your feet. You have your protection with you wherever you go.

If Chief Jos. T. Swan of the Everett Fire Department, who recently escaped election by having his shoes equipped with O'Sullivan's Heels of Live Rubber, had the soles as well as the heels on his shoes, he would not have received the shock at all; but according to the fact that his shoes were equipped with O'Sullivan's Heels of Live Rubber, they broke the shock, and he was not hurt.

We have in our possession the affidavit of the shoemaker who attached the O'Sullivan's Heels to his boots; and for that matter, it is nothing new for us to know that Heels of Live Rubber save lives from electricity.

There are saving lives every day by lessening the daily grind which you never read about in the papers. That is what Heels of Live Rubber are accomplishing for the millions who toil, who stand at their work, or walk to their work.

Don O'Leary, the veteran pedagogue, who is at the present time engaged by the O'Sullivan Rubber Co., giving demonstrations of the grating, can walk in New York City and how it can be easily acquired—the benefit it is to health—how Heels of Live Rubber tend to encourage it—says over his own signature, and he ought to know, as he has walked by his own comparison over 10,000 miles, that you can walk faster and farther on them with the same effort, and thus ought to know.

We advise active people to equip their street shoes with the Live Rubber Soles and Heels and discard their overboots and rubbers. It can be done with profit to yourself and men who use them (even them) do not put good rubber in them, as they used to; they overheat the feet; they rot the leather; they leak quickly at the heels; then they are worthless.

Rubber heels only cost 50c, the soles $1.50, and the combination $1.75 to $2.00. The more you pay, the better the shoe. So you deliver put on substitute heels when O'Sullivan's are ordered. They have gone on by with it in to the city and how it can be easily acquired—the benefit it is to health—how Heels of Live Rubber tend to encourage it—says over his own signature, and he ought to know, as he has walked by his own comparison over 10,000 miles, that you can walk faster and farther on them with the same effort, and thus ought to know.

If you can furnish evidence of substitution herein referred to, write to Lowell, Mass., and we will give you a cash reward.

TEACHERS POORLY PAID, NEED OLD AGE PENSIONS

SALARIES MEAGRE, DECLARES SALEM HEADMASTER.

Women Educators in Boston Schools Paid as Low as $360 Yearly.

The tables published in the Boston American, showing the inadequate salaries paid to both male and female teachers of Greater Boston, have stirred up a new and tremendous interest in this question.

The actual figures have given the public a graphic picture of what men and women pay the instructors of their children, at the same time revealing their maintenance a mere subsistence on a salary of $360 yearly.

Today the Boston School American presents more figures showing that the salaries of both male and female teachers are as low as $360 yearly.

Here are the salaries of the teachers in the various districts of the city and county:

Lessons in the Art of Making Love.

By Mme. De Perrot

[illegible]

The Spanish woman is like a star, but brief, her life is quickly swallowed up in the mother's heart. The mother's maternal love is stronger than the father's affection is strong. The Spanish woman loves her children in her early infancy. Poor Spanish love becomes a Spanish husband's love of romance. It is his love for his mother, but when he is young under her care, not at all. He will wait for you. However, the mother's petty household care has not killed the mother's love and laundry bills have not broken it. It is deep for forgiveness. And he is the most faithful, love and devoted in the world his father's woman's mind.

The Teddy Bears' Christmas Box

And if I go now, while we're away,
The Christmas dinner will only wait,
And be unfit to eat when we return,"
Said TEDDY-B, "Let the monkey take
"And besides," said he, "tis Christmas day
And if I go now while we're away."

"He met the monkey on the way
And stopped in the woods for a little play."

THE treasure box was a heavy weight,
And TEDDY-G sat down to wait
While TEDDY-B went around the beach
To see if he their tent could reach;
For from that point he knew the road
To Crusoe's mountain-side aloof
He met the monkey on the way
And stopped in the woods for a little play,
And then ran on at speed his best
To get some help on the treasure chest

"Come quick," he said, when he Crusoe met
"Come to the beach and a treasure get:
A treasure chest, all copper bound,
And hidden for centuries in the ground
Too big to move, and locked so tight
You'll have to work with all your might
And all your tools to break the lid,
I think it was locked by Captain Kidd.
And I am sure this box would hold
A million dollars if all in gold!"
But Robinson Crusoe laughed and said
That gold wasn't worth any more than lead,
For there wasn't a thing that they could buy
But this Crusoe island and the sea and sky
"And besides," said he, "tis Christmas day,

"Teddy-G had waited an hour or more Seated on the box on this lonely shore."

They worked on that chest till they broke the lock
By pounding it hard with a piece of rock;
And when they opened the ponderous lid
They saw the treasure that there was hid:
Bracelets and rings of solid gold,
And jeweled crowns some centuries old;
And chains of pearls and diamonds bright,
And loads of coin—a brilliant sight.
They each put on some chains and rings,
And crowned their heads till they looked like kings.
And then they marched to Crusoe's cave
And they looked so grand that Crusoe's slave
Got down on his knees in the humblest way
With his head in the dust to say good-day

As they sat at dinner that Christmas night,
Each with a crown—a royal sight—
And Friday serving the fowl and fruit,
And the monkey nearby playing a flute,
And the parrot singing a comic song
To help, as he said, the fun along,
TEDDY-B spoke up and said that he
Had dined in countries beyond the sea
With kings and queens in stately halls,
At big hotels and social balls.
But he could, he knew, quite safely say
That the fun they had this Christmas day,
And the dinner served for them that night,
Beat everything quite out of sight.

"Teddy-B spoke up and said that he
Had dined in countries beyond the sea
With kings and queens in stately halls,
At big hotels and social balls."

The position of cook and the butlers bake
While you and I and TEDDY-G
Open up the chest and its treasure see."
Crusoe agreed and off they went

Across the woods round by the tent:
Each carrying tools, some of Crusoe's best.

To crack the lock of the treasure chest,
TEDDY-G had waited an hour or more,

Seated on the box on this lonely shore.
The time seemed long and he jumped with glee

At the sight of Crusoe and TEDDY-B.

"The time seemed long and he jumped with glee
At the sight of Crusoe and Teddy-B."

"Got down on his knees in the humblest way
With his head in the dust to say good-day."

Dolls, Toys and Games

That we lead in Boston in the retail toy business has long been conceded by the shopping public. We never go backward, and this year we have outdone all our previous efforts. No such varied assortment of Dolls and Fittings, Toys of all kinds and Games has ever before been seen in our store. It is the selection of our buyers from the world's best toy makers, and it is hardly necessary for us to say that, as usual, our prices are the lowest.

Two Immense Toy Departments

In addition to our regular Toy Store, which is the largest of the year round Toy Department in Boston, we have taken on the entire floor of our new building, in addition of almost sixteen thousand square feet of space, for the holiday season. Everything we offer is in the best condition, having just been opened. Bring the little ones here. Let them enjoy every minute.

Illustrated Toy and Game Catalog

In order to facilitate the selection of a toy, doll or game, we have just issued a Holiday Catalogue, devoted entirely to this branch. To the best of our knowledge it is the first retail catalogue ever issued devoted entirely to Dolls, Toys and Games. It will be of great help to those who are in doubt as to what to buy for the little ones. Free of charge on application, either personally or by mail.

SIMON ENTERS CAPITAL OF HAYTIAN TRIUMPH.

Cheering Crowds Hail Victorious Rebel Chief in Streets of Port au Prince.
WARSHIPS' GUNS ON CITY
Aged President Alexis Flees to Jamaica, Overwhelmed by Crushing Disaster.

CIVIL WAR THREATENS Simon's Rivals Start Movement to Keep Victorious General from Presidency.

Port au Prince, Dec. 5.—With General Simon at the head, the revolutionary army, numbering 8,000 men, marched into this city today.
The Simon was given a splendid ovation. Cheering crowds lined the streets, hailing him as "Savior of the Republic." There was no disorder. The troops are distributed throughout the city and perfect order is being maintained. The general is making his headquarters at a private mansion on the Champ de Mars.
The general's arrival of Gen. Simon into Port au Prince was the death knell to the despotic regime of President Nori Alexis. When the aged head of the decaying government heard that a revolt had not been averted in the city, he was apparently so shocked and for a long time unable to utter a word. The blow which he had feared, his last hope had been dashed.

The aged President Alexis fled to Jamaica, overwhelmed by the crushing disaster. Simon's Rivals Start Movement to Keep Victorious General from Presidency.

A beautiful imported doll, 20 inches in length, Bisque head, fine curly hair, moving eyes, visible teeth, full back and rocket pointed, and with open-ankle stockings and slippers. A doll that ought to be considered good value at $1.50. We feel assured that nothing like it for the money has ever before been seen in Boston. This is merely one of the many unusually good things we have to offer.

The Great Power of Religion

Early among the Christmas Day, the great and joyous thing that men have applied hatred with tolerance, vile torture with earnest argument, and the essence of the day of religious hatred, of persecutions and tortures is done with AND REAL RELIGION IS STRONGER TO-DAY THAN EVER

The picture which we publish on this page represents, symbolically, part of the work that religion has done in this world. The work that religion does is to be a matter of faith and belief. The work that religion has done on this earth is a marvellous story of ACTING AGENTS, OF PROTECTION for the weak and steady influence of the race.

Religion is THE BEST THING IN MAN. In primitive man religion is primitive, and in the higher man the religious expression is proportionately higher.

But in every man religion represents the man's effort to be better than himself, his struggle to escape the feeling of reverence that fills him, his gratitude toward a beneficent benevolent power, and his desire to improve spiritually and to be worthy of universal kindness and protection.

It is well for Christmas and all men at this time of the year to remember the work that religion has done. We are apt to forget what we owe to the founders of religion, to the martyrs that died to establish it, to all the good men and women that have upheld it and lived according to its teachings.

To appreciate the work of the Christian religion we must remember that the civilizations of Greece and Rome died and vanished in the regular course of national growth and death. Then came a great European cataclysm. Greece and Rome fallen to the ground, barbarian hordes from the North and the East swept over Europe, ruled everything. We talk about the Middle Ages and the Dark Ages in Europe. They were really the ages when savagery took possession, when the books were burned, the temples torn down, art, science and philosophy despised and forgotten.

For centuries Europe was the home of fighting savages. IT WAS RELIGION THAT STRAIGHTENED OUT THAT TANGLE, BROUGHT LIGHT INTO THE DARKNESS AND MITIGATED WITH ITS TEACHINGS, THREATS AND REWARDS THE BRUTALITY OF BRUTAL RACES AND KINGS

There were great universities in Europe in the Middle Ages EVERY ONE OF THESE WAS FOUNDED BY RELIGIOUS POWER AND PROTECTED BY RELIGIOUS AUTHORITY. The various Popes were never more active than in the protection of the universities and of learning. They gave special privileges and protection to the students, otherwise defenceless strangers in more or less savage cities. The Popes established courts for the students' protection; they encouraged study.

The knowledge and intellectuality which grew out of these universities were the direct creation of religious power.

The Best That Is in Man, His Respect for Supreme Power, Keeps Back and Beats Down the Evil in His Nature

There were in those black ages a few places where wretched human beings could find protection and asylum. These were due to the power and the authority of religion. There were men that saved the unhappy peasants from the brutality of their masters, and these men were the religious teachers, the monks, the priests and the great religious princes.

Here and there in the blackest ages, some books were saved, art was kept alive—this was done by the religious men. And the protectors of the great artists that followed later were the great men of the Church.

What religion did for the whole of Europe, for the entire human race, during the dark ages, it does to-day in the individual.

In every human being worthy of the name there is a feeling of veneration for eternal power and goodness. And, based upon this feeling, there is a desire to be better, to be worthy of so much kindness. Religion, in fact, is essentially man's desire to be good and worthy.

Religion has punished brutality and frightened it as nothing else could have done. We shudder when we read some of the early religious teachings, the minute and terrible descriptions of Hell, with tortures unended. But such a Hell as that and such descriptions as those were NECESSARY to compel the vile beasts that ruled weak and defenceless men to respect some of those men's rights. A drunken, murderous baron could be reached only by the man of religion, who taught him that he would burn forever, and that even worse things would happen to him.

Men's religious ideas have changed. We no longer imagine the omnipotent Creator of this wonderful universe creating His children and then burning them alive eternally.

But we recognise with wonder and admiration religion's adaptability, the fact that the faith which fifteen centuries ago could be the terror, the law and the coercer of the brutal baron is to-day the hope and the consolation and the inspiration of the gentlest woman.

To RESPECT every other man's religion and to OBEY your own religious belief—that is the rule of the good American citizen to-day. Thanks to religious teaching in the past, justice has been made a part of law, equality is a part of the law and of the Constitution. Religion, no longer a dominant and necessary factor in the State, is the private affair of the individual. And, thanks to this condition, religious strife has ended, hatred has disappeared, except in the base, ignorant minds of a few unworthy of the name and teachings of religion. Men of different faith compete in the effort to excite the world's admiration for the works of that faith; they no longer compete in acts of barbarity.

Christmas Day, which approaches now, is especially the children's day, and those that celebrate it should remember especially what Christmas has done for the children and the women. Think that only a few centuries ago the child had absolutely no rights, not even the right to life. Children were exposed in public streets. They were devoured by dogs or wild beasts, or if anybody chose to take and keep them they became that person's slave. That was changed by religion, instantly and drastically.

Many have a faith which teaches them that the child not baptized is lost. Others thoughtlessly criticize that faith. They do not know that that very teaching of baptism IS THE RELIGIOUS TEACHING THAT SAVED THE LIVES OF THE CHILDREN.

The old religious teachers found it necessary to appeal to FEAR in order to reach the fathers and mothers. They taught that the child not brought to the priest and baptized was lost, and therefore that the father and the mother guilty of neglect or guilty of infanticide would have upon their consciences that load of guilt and be punished for it in future.

This teaching stopped infanticide and the exposure of children. It compelled the mothers and the fathers to recognize the children and keep them alive. Baptism meant for the child not only what faith promises for the future, BUT IMMUNITY FROM MURDER IN THIS LIFE.

The greatest power of religion, greater even than its power in the State, has been, in the past as it is now, the power in the individual. Very few men and women live that are not influenced, consciously or unconsciously, by religious faith, by a belief in the unknown, a respect for the great power that rules and directs so wisely.

We believe that mothers and fathers, failing the presence of an appointed religious teacher, might well explain to their children at Christmas time the wonderful work that religion has done since the very beginning. Point out that the religious teachers were the original lawmakers. The Ten Commandments were given for the control of men when there was no law but force, no law that the really powerful men feared or obeyed.

Orders coming from above, accepted as Divine, reached the kings on their thrones, frightened the rulers at the head of their armies, AND PROTECTED THE WEAK AND THE FEEBLE.

Explain that to the children, show them how religions have grown gradually from the primitive beliefs, fears and superstitions to the beautiful spiritual conceptions of to-day. Teach respect for all religious faith, teach each child to speak of another child's religion as he would of his own child's mother or father.

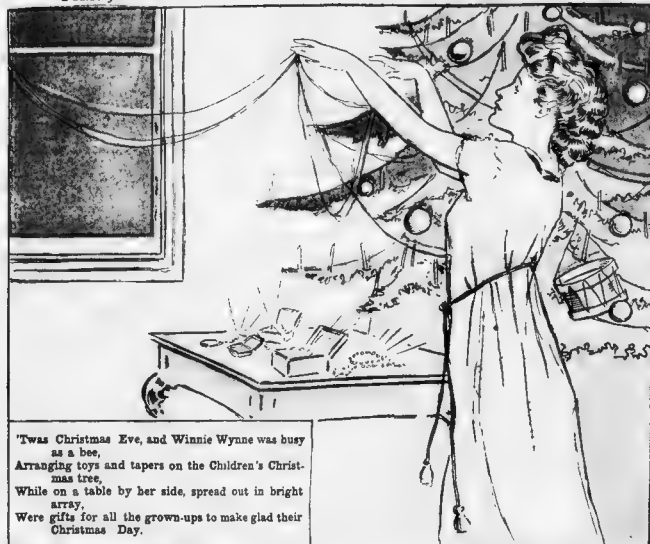

And teach veneration for that most beautiful and noble Christmas Day whose birth is celebrated.

OH, WINNIE!

'Twas Christmas Eve, and Winnie Wynne was busy
as a bee,
Arranging toys and tapers on the Children's Christmas tree,
While on a table by her side, spread out in bright array,
Were gifts for all the grown-ups to make glad their Christmas Day.

A watch for Uncle Roger and a necklace for Aunt Anne,
A string of pearls for Gladys, and a ruby ring for Nan.
Seeing the tempting trinkets shining with brilliant flame,
A great big, bold, bad burglar right through the window came!

Winnie turned faint with terror—she choked and gasped for breath.
"Please, Mr. Burglar, go away; I'm frightened most to death!"
"You'd better be!" Now, you stay scared while I swipe this 'ere loot,
An' if you don't set up a howl, they ain't no cause to shoot!"

"What shall I do?" thought Winnie Wynne, and then, with artless guile,
She flashed at that bad burglar her most enchanting smile.
He dropped the pearls and pistol—he stared like some one dazed.
"Oh, gee! I never seen such lamps!" he muttered as he gazed.

"I've piped the swagger bunch afore, but I can't stan' fer this!
Somehow I've lost my taste fer jols—I won't take nothin', miss!
I ain't no bloomin' burglar! I jest dropped in to say
I wish yer Merry Christmas! Hope yer have a pleasant day!"

Awakened by the noise, the children all came running in.
"Hey, what's the matter, Auntie, dear?" they asked of Winnie Wynne.
"Oh, Santa Claus has just been 'round; too bad
you missed his call!
But see the lovely Christmas gifts he left here for us all!"

Winnie's adventures will be continued in next Sunday's Editorial Section.

RUINS OF THE SYNAGOGUE AT CAPERNAUM.

THE synagogue at Capernaum in which Jesus first preached has been found at last. The very building in which He first announced His mission has been uncovered by the German Oriental Society, of which the Kaiser is chief patron.

The expedition sent to explore Galilee and see if there were not some remains of the ancient sanctuaries has reported to the Kaiser and the other supporters of the movement that they have found, not one, but half a dozen of these synagogues which first saw Jesus doing the work which was to reform a world.

Students of those times know that besides the great temple of sacrifice at Jerusalem, the only place in which it was permitted to offer burnt offerings, there were numerous synagogues scattered all over the Palestine in which services of various kinds were held.

This is made plain by the statements of no less than three of the Gospels that Jesus spoke in the synagogues of Galilee. It is mentioned in Matthew, iv, 23; Mark, i, 39, but most fully in the Book of Luke, chapter ii, 1-4. Jesus had been baptised by John the Baptist; John had been beheaded at the request of Salome, and the military of Jesus was to begin, for He was then thirty years old. He was tempted by Satan, who took Him up to the Mount overlooking Jerusalem, but after this ordeal His trial by His compatriots begins. As Luke says: "He taught in their synagogues."

The most important of all these synagogues was the one at Capernaum, on the Sea of Galilee. It was there that Jesus began to preach the Gospel and uttered His first great exhortation.

"Repent, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand."

This synagogue was covered by only a small accumulation of earth, and its site is about 250 feet from the north-

The Quite Unusual Romance of Young Westinghouse and Miss Brocklebank, Broken by Last Year's "Hard Times," Is Renewed by the New Wave of "Good Times."

[illegible]

This marriage is made upon a foundation of the new prosperity. The one of the good things Santa Claus has brought to a hard working young man is a well-meaning man.

Now the romance is more interesting than this one. Sir Thomas Brocklebank and Lady Brocklebank, the daughter, Miss Evelyn Violet Brocklebank, sailed from Liverpool, where Sir Thomas is one of the leading shipbuilders in Great Britain. It was their first visit to the States.

They left a note for the American agents of Newport, the fact of the ship and hurried on to Providence where they are to be married in a few days.

man she had last seen in overall and faded blue jeans and a white shirt.

"You're the Arabak, permitted to present me to the American friend, Mr. George Westlight?" You must have read of him in the American newspapers, the young man who was graduated from Yale, who was his father's factory and labored as a workman to learn his father's great invention as well as his father knew it himself."

The young man bowed low. From his eyes the quizzical expression passed, and he took on one of supplication.

"Mr. Westlight is laughing, Mr. Arabak," he said, "but I am laughing, too. In reality, quite unwittingly, it seemed to him. Yet the laughter from this self-proclaimed young woman was somewhat discouraging."

A black and white photograph of a woman in a long, light-colored, floor-length gown with a full skirt and a fitted bodice. She has dark, curly hair and is looking slightly to the left. The photograph is mounted on a dark album page with a decorative border.

"What did you tell us?" she asked when the disconcerting laughter had subsided.

"I feared you would think it as superstitious if I did."

"I shall be content to be English as much as I read of your race, but business does not depend on superstition."

"I have never denied the young men of England." The remark seemingly irritated her.

"In America a man's business integrity is his reputation," she was replying.

"What a hard country," the English girl pined her face and looked at the young man who had come from the northern lake about her father's house.

"I don't think so." The same look was in his eyes as the other's. He had stood at the factory door and watched a man being driven to the hospital.

"You see, the man who is faithful to his business interests will be true to his home and family interests. My father taught me that the man who is a dowerer from the effort to be honest is the best—"

"At business hours, a good deal of time," he interrupted.

"My brother-back looked at him as he spoke. Never had she heard a conversation so different. In a ballroom. And yet, here he admitted that men lied it, and shared the national fraud, strong-headed young men who were not honest."

"I shall not want to work every day in a hard man's place, as the other would."

"I thought if I was to be a workman, I should like to be like Mr. Brockhouse."

"And have you learned the business?"

"Father thinks I live it thoroughly."

"I am glad to hear that," she said. "I mean to tell you."

"We will not let down and the next day, when the young Lady Brockhouse came to look for her daughter she stared at the young man who had come through her father's factory.

"This is possible!" The English girl said.

"We met in the factory at Pittsburg?"

"Yes," he answered.

Brockhouse laughed. There were expatiations so satisfactory that Sir Thomas drove the young man to his hotel and invited him to spend a fortnight at Sir Thomas's place at Wootton, a suburb of Liverpool, and the whole was inevitable happened. He made formal request of Sir Thomas for the hand of his daughter, and Sir Thomas, with a cheerfulness subdued by a sense of duty, gave him his hand in that and the following manner:

"You are far beyond all that year and a half ago, and I am glad to see you back that he must release her. When he proposed he was heir to a fortune of £100,000, and I was very anxious that he did not know whether he possessed a dollar or not, like so many other rich men who are very careless of their duty as to go to work and strive to put his father's trust business on its feet."

When I asked you to marry me I was heir to $500,000,000. I cannot ask you to

Why We Should Drink Plenty of Water.

A RECOMMENDATION BY A PHYSICIAN.
The human body is composed of about 75 per cent of water. It is the most essential element for life. Without water, the body cannot function properly. Water is also essential for the health of the skin and the internal organs. Drinking plenty of water helps to keep the body cool and hydrated. It also helps to flush out toxins and waste products from the body. In hot weather, it is especially important to drink plenty of water to prevent dehydration. Water is also essential for the health of the heart and the blood vessels. Drinking plenty of water helps to keep the blood flowing smoothly and prevents the formation of blood clots. Water is also essential for the health of the lungs and the respiratory system. Drinking plenty of water helps to keep the lungs moist and prevents the development of respiratory infections. Water is also essential for the health of the digestive system. Drinking plenty of water helps to keep the digestive tract moving and prevents constipation. Water is also essential for the health of the nervous system. Drinking plenty of water helps to keep the nerves hydrated and prevents the development of neurological disorders. Water is also essential for the health of the reproductive system. Drinking plenty of water helps to keep the reproductive organs hydrated and prevents the development of reproductive disorders. Water is also essential for the health of the immune system. Drinking plenty of water helps to keep the immune system strong and prevents the development of diseases. Water is also essential for the health of the entire body. Drinking plenty of water helps to keep the body healthy and happy.

Underberg

The World's Best Bitters

TO ENJOY THE HOLIDAYS

Don't forget UNDERBERG Bitters, for your guests, yourselves and the children. It braces, stimulates, creates good humor, gives one a healthy appetite, and then "settles all but the bill." Indigestion is unknown when Underberg Bitters is used daily. After holiday shopping it removes the weariness quicker than a rest. Any home is made the happier where it is introduced. Keep it handy.

3. To one he gave a drum, to another a ball, and to another a toy gun, and so on until he had nothing left for himself.

d. When the fight was over all the pretty presents were broken and the ungrateful children were no better off than before. But that wasn't Tommy's fault.
